CALLS FOR ALL-PARTY CABINET ON COUNCIL AFTER LABOUR LOSSES

Independents set to hold sway on local authority after election shake-up

Report by Henry James

LABOUR has lost overall control of West Lancashire Borough Council after losing three seats in last week's local elections.

While Labour remain the party with most seats on 26, the Conservatives gained a seat to bring their total up to 20, and Our West Lancashire also gained a seat to bring their total up to seven.

The elections also saw an Independent councillor win a seat in Skelmersdale, the first non-Labour councillor elected in the town for decades.

It means Labour no longer has a majority and therefore the ability to automatically form its own cabinet.

Instead, it must form an alliance with another party, attempt to run a minority leadership or form a cross-party working relationship.

Party leaders will hold a meeting on how to move forward on Wednesday, May 19, with the leader of the independent party, Our West Lancashire, Councillor Adrian Owens calling for an all-party executive to run the local authority.

Labour leader Councillor Ian Moran said the results were "disappointing but not unexpected taking into account the national picture."

He added: "West Lancashire Labour group intends to continue if possible to lead and run this council in the best interests of its people and its residents."

"The next 12 months and beyond are going to be focused on rebuilding and strengthening our communities and our businesses post Covid."

"We look forward to realistic and serious suggestions and ideas from everyone."

Before Thursday Labour had 29 seats on West Lancashire Borough Council, the Conservatives had 19 and Our West Lancashire had six.

Labour lost one of their seats in Skelmersdale, which is usually a stronghold for the party. James Upjohn (Independent) was elected to the Ashurst ward with 1,162 votes, with Labour's Margaret Blake coming second with 608 votes.

Our West Lancashire took the Burscough West seat from Labour. George Clandon was elected with 649 votes, Labour's Andrew Pritchard was second with 507 votes.

The Conservatives gained the Halsall seat from Labour. The Conservative's Denise Hirrell took 322 votes, and David Heywood (Labour) was second with 149 votes.

Councillor David Westley Conservative leader, said: "I was delighted with the outcome of what was a hard fought campaign."

"With West Lancs now a hung council, I am hopeful that we can now cut waste and introduce the efficiencies to preserve essential frontline services"

Our West Lancashire group chairman, Councillor Adrian Owens said: "The clear message from West Lancashire voters is that they don't have confidence in either of the two big parties."

"We are ready to talk to both Labour and Conservative. No one has a monopoly of good ideas. We

Lancashire's bid to become City of Culture 2025 needs your help!

Organisers want ideas to support their 'virtual city' concept

Report by Henry James

LANCASHIRE
2025

Debbie Lander, the director of Lancashire's bid, wants to create a 'virtual city'

ORGANISERS of Lancashire's bid to become UK City of Culture 2025 is looking for local residents and artists to submit ideas that could become part of their 'virtual' campaign.

As reported by the Champion, Lancashire is competing as a whole county in the national event, which is held every four years.

Previously, the competition has only been contested by individual cities, but the Department of Culture Media and Sport has since indicated that a county-wide bid for Lancashire would be welcomed.

It would bring together all the towns and cities across the county, including West Lancashire, to form one virtual city.

Organisers now want to hear from locals about their ideas.

The team will be the first county-scale cultural programme to compete for Cultural City status and the first time a submission will have envisaged a county as one 'virtual city.'

Debbi Lander, director of 'Lancashire2025' said: "This is the first time a county has envisioned itself as a virtual city and this is our first call out to artists, cultural organisations, cultural innovators, social pioneers, curators and producers from Lancashire, the UK and the rest of the world. Our aim is to put together a ground-breaking programme for the Lancashire 2025 bid."

"We are looking for new ideas, high profile events, creative projects and cultural experiences for a location in Lancashire - ideas that will bring our vision to life."

The programme for Lancashire 2025 will explore the way we live between the real and imagined to create the Virtual City of Lancashire.

Fifteen selected projects will be submitted as part of the Lancashire 2025 Bid and, subject to Lancashire being chosen to be UK's City of Culture for 2025, will be awarded up to £25,000 development money to research and develop their proposal for potential commissioning from 2022.

Debbi continued: "We are offering up the county as a site for experiment at large scale between real and imagined; inviting proposals around our topics of living, connection, nature and digital."

"We hope to set an international standard for the way we live; illustrating, interrogating and illuminating better, creative and more sustainable ways of living. Help us build the Virtual City of Lancashire."

Details of how to apply and the application form can be found on Lancashire2025.com and applicants should provide their submission by August 31 2021.

The Lancashire 2025 Bid is due to be submitted to the UK Government Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS), between December 2021 and March 2022.

Is it a bird? Is it a plane? No, it's the Batwoman barber!

Comic book theme proves a big hit with children who can get a hair cut from their favourite superhero!

Report by Henry James

BARBER Gemma Mitchley has been a fan of superhero films for many years, so when she decided to start her own business in Skelmersdale she knew exactly what theme it should take!

Gemma recently opened her barber shop, D.C. Barbers, on Ormskirk Road with a comic book theme, and she can be seen cutting her customer's hair while dressed in a Batwoman cloak.

The 36-year-old came up with the idea while talking about a new business venture with her husband.

The hairdresser is certainly not winging it either as she has 20 years experience in the profession.

Before the first lockdown she was made redundant from a barber shop in Wigan following maternity leave and so decided to go it alone cutting hair.

Gemma told the Champion: "I grew up watching superhero films. The Dark Knight is my favourite film, so I decided my shop should have a comic book theme as well.

Gemma dressed as Batwoman while cutting a young customer's hair

"There are so many traditional barber shops, and this is certainly not one of them!"

Youngsters and adults can dress up as superheroes at the barber shop

"Kids can dress up as Captain America, Superman, Batman and Robin... the dads can too if they want!"

"The idea is to give my customers something different and give them an experience."

"Children may feel that going to the hairdressers is not so scary after visiting my barber shop. It is something fun for them. It was an idea my husband and I thought about."

"We offer comics while people are waiting rather than the traditional magazines and we even have a sweet bowl with the Joker's face on it!"

Top cop speaks out about new op to target organised crime

Ormskirk Police Station

A WEST Lancashire police chief has spoken about a new initiative which has been launched to target organised crime based on community intelligence.

Operation Hera is on-going, and will run bi-monthly in a bid to make sure crime is reduced on the streets of the borough.

Police had a test run before carrying the first stage of the operation which saw 120 cannabis plants taken from an address on the High Street, Skelmersdale.

West Lancashire Geographic Inspector, Danny Clough, said: "In West Lancashire there is a certain feeling that the police are not doing enough. This operation is to let everyone know that we are working for them and listening to communities."

"The aim of the operation is to bring back communities, and make people living in those areas feel safe. Families can then go about their business, feel safe, and are confident enough to challenge that criminal activity."

Operation Hera will be in particular targeting drug crime in Skelmersdale and police believe Ormskirk's roads are used for transporting drugs.

Insp Clough added: "All sorts of criminal activity is drug related. For example, a criminal may steal a car to facilitate drug use. We will be targeting offenders, bringing them to justice, and preventing this type of criminal activity."

"We also want to stop the flow of drugs into West Lancashire and help the community create a safe area for themselves."

Police believe that drug use and drug supply issues are linked to Merseyside, and they are trying hard to stop that from occurring.

Anyone with any information which might help police is being asked to email ophera@lancashire.police.uk

Through Lancashire Talking people can let police know what it's like to live in their area. It also gives residents the chance to tell police what issues matter most to them. # 'Dementia Hub' launched to offer more support to people in West Lancashire

Specialist charity sets up online group to give more guidance to local residents

Report by Henry James

The 'Dementia Hub' is an online group

A NEW online support group is being launched next week to help people living in West Lancashire with dementia, their families and carers, to socialise, get access to services and enjoy entertainment and guest speakers.

The new group has its first meeting on Wednesday, May 19 at 2pm.

It is being led by Age UK Lancashire's Dementia Community Links team with support from local organisations, who provide services for people and families affected by dementia or who have memory concerns.

Peter Holton from Age UK Lancashire said: "We are launching the Dementia Hub online as we identified a need over the last year of people still wanting the chance to socialise and access support."

"We had a similar hub in Lancaster during the pandemic and are now able to offer one to people living in Chorley, South Ribble and West Lancashire".

The online Hub is accessed via Zoom, with the Age UK Lancashire team able to support people who perhaps don't have access to the internet or people who may not know how to set themselves up on Zoom.

Peter Holton added: "We know some older people may not have access to the internet but hope that their family members or friends could work with us to help them get set up and be given the opportunity to join our Hub. We would encourage anyone to get in touch with us if they are interested in joining the Hub so we can help them."

The Dementia Hub launches on Wednesday, May 19 at 2pm until 3.30pm. It will then run on the third Wednesday of each month, with people encouraged to join each one. The Hub will give people the opportunity to socialise, which has not been easy over the last 12 months.

Peter Holton said: "It will be great to have as many people as possible joining in and I know they will enjoy and benefit from it."

"If you don't want to chat you don't have to, you can just sit back and listen to the information. We don't want anyone to feel they have to talk if they are not comfortable with that."

If you would like to access the Hub personally or with a relative or friend living with dementia, then please call Age UK Lancashire on: 0300 303 1234 or email: thedementiahub@ageuklancs.org.uk where you will be given full support to access the hub when it launches. The Dementia Hub is completely free to access.

For more information on the dementia hub or any of the services Age UK Lancashire provide, visit www.ageuklancs.org.uk

Tory elected as county's new Police and Crime Commissioner

CONSERVATIVE candidate Andrew Snowden has been elected as the new Lancashire Police and Crime Commissioner, and has pledged he is "out to get" people who break the law.

It was another blow for Labour as their candidate Clive Grunshaw had held the £86,700 a year position from 2012, when it was created.

Mr Snowden, who will serve for the next four years, took the position in second preference votes. He received 181,314 votes (51.3%) overall.

Mr Snowden said the following in his victory speech: "I want to thank the people of Lancashire for placing their trust in me today to take on this office. I am really humbled and will serve you to the best of my abilities over the next few years.

"I have two messages after this count today. One is to the law-abiding citizens of Lancashire and to the local communities out there and to our police force.

"I am on your side. I will be your voice. I will be your champion and I will work tirelessly to cut crime.

"The second message I have is to criminals and people who break the law in Lancashire is simple, I am out to get you.

"I took this job on to get tough on crime and I can assure you I will work with the Chief Constable and with national government to bring all the available resources and powers that are needed to catch to criminals and bring them to justice."

‘Much-needed’ Post Office opens in village church hub

THE much-needed Post Office within Up Holland’s Church of St Thomas the Martyr has been opened by West Lancashire MP Rosie Cooper.

The village has been without post office services for five years, leaving residents having to travel at least four miles to the nearest Post Offices in Wigan or Skelmersdale.

The volunteers at the Up Holland Community Hub, based in the Church of St Thomas the Martyr, worked hard to secure the return of the Post Office for the village.

They recently asked Ms

Cooper for support, and she made contact with the Chief Executive Officer at the Post Office, stressing the need for a Post Office in Up Holland.

The official opening of the Post Office was held outside the Church, with Rosie Cooper MP, Archdeacon Jennifer McKenzie and Post Office area manager Paul Halliday attending.

Discussing the event, Rosie Cooper MP said: “I would like to thank the volunteers at the Community Hub for inviting me to officially open the Post Office.

“These services are much needed for Up Holland residents who have struggled to travel to the branches in neighbouring towns. I am delighted and thank the Post Office for their help in establishing this facility.

“The Community Hub is a remarkable space and a testament to the hard work and dedication of the Community Group. Covid has forced people to be isolated but as we slowly recover, places like this are incredibly important to bring us together and I thank everyone that has been involved.”

More lockdown rules set to be lifted on Monday, May 17

Next stage of ‘roadmap, due to come into force

PUBS can open indoors, people can meet in groups of 30 outdoors and theatres will reopen under the next phase of lockdown easing, due to come into force next week.

These are just some of the new rules as part of the next phase of the ‘roadmap for lifting lockdown’, which is set to come into force on Monday, May 17, with West Lancashire residents and businesses to enjoy some more freedoms!

If the government sticks to its plan, then from Monday, May 17 more rules will be eased across England, which includes people being able to meet in groups of up to 30 outdoors and six people or two households now able to meet indoors.

There will also be a huge boost for the hospitality industry, as pubs, restaurants and other hospitality venues will be able to welcome customers indoors.

Some of the other plans include:

- Domestic overnight stays allowed with people not in your household or bubble
- Up to 30 people can attend weddings and no limit for attendees at funerals
- Remaining outdoor entertainment, such as outdoor

Pubs can open indoors under the new plans theatres and cinemas can open

- Indoor entertainment such as museums, theatres and cinemas can open

- Performances and large events can restart, with limits on audience numbers

- Hotels, hostels and B&Bs can reopen

- Holidays abroad allowed to ‘green list’ countries

- Adult indoor group sports and exercise classes can restart

At the moment, the country is under ‘Step Two’ of the government’s roadmap, which allowed for outdoor hospitality to reopen in England on April 12.

After Step 3 on May 17, the next phase of lockdown easing will come no earlier than June 21, which could see all legal limits on social contact removed and night clubs reopened.

Tennis club plan for all weather courts

Report by Henry James

AUGHTON Lawn Tennis Club has submitted plans to replace three of its lawned courts with two all weather surface courts.

Officials at Granville Park based club, say its membership, has increased in recent years especially with younger players through a coaching scheme.

The planning application from the club states: "The existing facilities have reached maximum capacity for use."

It adds that the grass courts are considered to be too small and can only be used at certain times of the year.

They also regularly cannot be used because of bad weather and because the grass surface needs recovery time.

Two sycamore trees are recommended to be removed regardless of the outcome of the application and one holly tree is also suggested for removal as part of the application.

The planning statement adds: "It is felt that the removal of three trees will have minimal negative impact on the character of the area."

"The club proposed to plant four maple trees during the spring of 2021 while this application is being considered."

"The club also propose further tree planting and is keen to preserve and maintain the remaining existing trees and include remedial measures detailed in a method statement for their maintenance, as part of this application."

Four of the eight courts have floodlighting at the moment.

Under the proposals the mini court would have floodlighting as would two new full sized court and the existing number 8 court.

The club states that it hopes the council will recognise the contribution that the club makes and, "will be able to respond favourably to this application."

The statement adds: "The club has the opportunity to make improvements that will greatly improve the quality of a number of courts and substantially increase the playing capacity."

"The benefits of all weather capability are widely recognised, and are frequently used all year round."

Cyclist inspired by grandad to take on 101 mile challenge

Charlie to complete gruelling distance in only seven hours for charity close to family's heart

Report by Henry James

AN Aughton cyclist has been inspired by his grandad's tireless fundraising over the years to get on his bike and raise money for charity himself!

Charlie McGee, 22, wants to complete a gruelling cycling challenge which will involve him travelling 101 miles in under seven hours.

His grandad, Peter Marrs, lost his brother, Tommy, to Motor Neurone Disease 31 years ago and ever since he has been on the committee of the MND's Liverpool branch helping raise funds and awareness.

Peter's passion to improve life for people with the illness and to bring in funds for them and for research into the disease has now been passed on to grandson Charlie.

And despite only getting the cycling bug just over six months ago to get fit, Charlie has found himself falling in love with the sport and decided to set himself a challenge and help others at the same time.

He is setting off from his home in Aughton on May 30 and going on a gruelling round trip which will take him from West to East Lancashire including Burnley and Blackburn.

"It will be the furthest I have attempted and with 8,138ft total elevation gain it's an absolute killer of a ride. But it's a fantastic opportunity to support a charity that myself and my family are very passionate about," said Charlie.

"Anyone who wants to join me on the ride, at their own pace and risk, is welcome to come along and they can contact me via the Liverpool branch of the MND Association," he added.

"The more backing I can get for this venture the better as it will all help raise much needed cash. I have set up a JustGiving page with a £1,000 target but it would be great if I could smash that so I urge people to support this challenge via JustGiving Charlie's MND 101 mile cycling challenge," said Charlie.

Campaign calls on people to consider adopting siblings

Report by Henry James

A NEW campaign has been launched to encourage more people to consider adopting groups of brothers and sisters.

The #YouCanAdopt campaign highlights the benefits of adopting more than one child and celebrates the irreplaceable bond of brothers and sisters.

Among those supporting the campaign are James and Anne, from Lancashire, who are parents to brother and sister Jack and Lucy.

James said: "We started our adoption journey following a long period where we both had demanding careers.

"When we decided to plan a family, we were met with fertility challenges and following unsuccessful attempts at IVF, my wife suggested we pop along to a local adoption event where we found out more about the process.

"I was a little sceptical about adoption at first and couldn't get my head around how I could love someone else's child, but I couldn't have been more wrong.

"During the adoption process, our Social Worker asked whether we would be happy to adopt a sibling group and we said we would consider this.

"Two years after successfully adopting Lucy aged 17 months, we were informed that her birth mother had given birth.

"We decided that we would then adopt Jack who was seven months and our amazing and perfect family was complete."

Anne said: "As with all siblings, they love to argue over the smallest things. However, if one of them is upset, they are always there to comfort each other and you can instantly see that natural sibling bond kicking in, which will bring tears to your eyes.

People being considered to adopt groups of brothers and sisters (picture being posed by models)

"It's at these moments when you realise that keeping the children together as siblings has probably been the most rewarding thing you will ever achieve."

Adoption Lancashire and Blackpool, the regional adoption agency for the county, is also supporting the national campaign.

Throughout their respective areas of Lancashire and Blackpool, they currently have around 30 children in care awaiting adoption placements. Included in this figure is six sets of sibling groups.

Nationally there are 2,030 children looking for new homes, and 44 per cent of those are brothers and sisters. Groups of two or more children take 135 days (36 per cent longer) to be adopted than individual children.

Charity aims to help families during awareness month

Report by Danielle Thompson

DESPITE the recent easing of national lockdown restrictions, many parents of neonatal babies in the North West continue to face significant challenges in being with their premature or sick baby.

Before the pandemic parents typically had unrestricted access to their baby 24 hours a day, with neonatal units encouraging full participation in care giving. But in the past 12 months, parental access at many units has been restricted, with parents often unable to attend the unit together, and some having limits imposed on the length of time they can be with their baby.

Restrictions vary from unit-to-unit and the picture across the UK is extremely varied, with some units continuing to facilitate full parental presence and involvement in their baby's care. Policies have also changed over time, depending on national COVID-19 restrictions and local infection rates.

As part of this year's Maternal Mental Health Awareness Month, taking place throughout May, Bliss Baby Charity is raising awareness of new research which shows the devastating impact of these restrictions. Parents whose babies required neonatal care during the COVID-19 pandemic have told them how they struggled to access mental health support and experienced high levels of isolation.

In a Bliss survey of more than 500 parents of neonatal babies born in the past 12 months, 92% of parents said they felt isolated and 69% said their mental health has become worse following their neonatal experience.

Now the team at Bliss are calling on NHS England

Charity wants a return to 24/7 parent access on neonatal units to introduce a National Roadmap for a return to usual 24/7 parent access on neonatal units as a matter of urgency, and to work with NHS Trusts in the North West and beyond to implement it consistently across the country.

A Bliss spokesperson said: "Parents with a neonatal experience are already at a high risk of experiencing mental health difficulties, and many parents feel they have not been able to get support for their mental health and wellbeing while their baby is in neonatal care."

"Parents are the most important people in their baby's lives and unit access restrictions have had a substantial impact on families. The implications on family bonding and mental health will be felt long into the future."

"Our smallest and sickest babies need their parents at their side to give them the best chance of survival and quality of life."

Oscar's roll-over charity challenge helps raise money for Rainbow Hub

Report by Tom Martin

AN inspirational three-year-old has raised £180 for a Mawdesley-based charity after taking on a roll-over challenge!

Oscar Darwin, who attends conductive education at Rainbow Hub, wanted to do ten roll-overs unaided to raise funds for the charity.

Not only did the Formby toddler do ten roll-overs, but he doubled this number!

The challenge was part of Rainbow Hub's 20th Birthday Celebration Virtual Ramble, which took place on Saturday, April 24.

The Lancashire charity, which has been supporting children and young people with physical and neurological disabilities for 20 years, wanted to celebrate with a big party, but couldn't due to Covid restrictions.

As well as Oscar's challenge, other events and donations from locals have helped raise nearly £10,000.

Lyndsay Fahey, CEO, Rainbow Hub, said: "We are

Oscar during his roll-over challenge!

amazed and delighted with the support we have received. It is a fantastic result and it was brilliant to see the community coming together to support a local charity."

Kath and Alex Taste the Freedom

This May, we will all hopefully be 'set free' from lockdown and as we see lockdown restrictions ease, Slimming World members Kath and Alex are on a mission to spread a vital message to slimmers everywhere – that now is the time to enjoy the freedom of losing weight their way. The freedom to enjoy the food they love and still lose weight beautifully – without counting a single calorie, the freedom to share meals with friends and family, the freedom to be active in any way, the physical freedom of losing weight and the freedom to live life to the full.

For Kath a breast cancer diagnosis was the turning point in her mission to lose weight, get active and feel healthy "I knew just how important lifestyle changes were to me in order to live a longer, healthier and happier life. Losing weight was part of the changes I wanted to make but I was really nervous about joining a weight loss group. However, as soon as I walked through the door I felt welcomed and supported. The Consultant instantly put me at ease and the other members were so friendly and genuinely interested in me." Kath goes on to say "I was amazed at how, just by making a few changes to how I shopped, cooked and ate, that I could lose weight simply by eating the foods that my family loved." Being able to enjoy family favourites such as Chinese style fakeaways, pasta dishes and Sunday Roasts helped Kath to lose over 7 stone to reach her goal of being fitter and healthier.

Alex, who hit her target of losing over 4 stone following the birth of her son during lockdown last year goes on to say "for me it was third time lucky in terms of reaching a weight I feel happy and healthy at. I have a real sweet tooth and loved to fill up on sweets, chocolate and crisps and in my early twenties started to see the weight pile on. I got myself in to a trap of losing weight and then regaining it until I joined Slimming World after the birth of my son last year. Now I know with the support of the group and the help from my consultant, who is trained in both the science and psychology of weight loss, that I have developed healthy eating lifestyle for life and been able to uncover some of the habits that have previously sabotaged me losing weight and keeping it off. I can't wait to be able to help others do the same now I have trained as a Slimming World Consultant"

Both Kath and Alex are set to help others by launching their own groups in Burscough (Kath) and Bootle (Alex) in order to share a taste of the freedom of Slimming World to show how Slimming World's flexible, healthy eating plan fits around everyone, giving the freedom to lose weight in a liberating way so you can love food and love life! See advert for full details of the groups or visit www.slimmingworld.co.uk

Villagers' memories of Second World War are told in new book

Report by Henry James

MEMORIES of the Second World War in Appley Bridge is the subject of a new book by three local people with contributions from the village's residents.

The book is called Appley Bridge and the Second World War and is a collaboration between Anne Fletcher, Steven Smith and Barbara Dix.

Anne said: "We have had lots of local contributions and it is amazing how much material about the village and the war has been uncovered."

The three had already published a short book to commemorate the 100th Anniversary of Armistice Day in 2018 called 'Appley Bridge Remembers - Centenary of Armistice Day (1918-2018)' which gave brief histories of everyone in the village who fought in that war and did not return.

Steven Smith said: "The Second World War being more recent meant it was not only in some people's living memory, but much more material was at hand such as blackout restrictions, identity cards, fire watching duties, food rationing, air raid shelters, evacuees moving to the village fleeing city bombardment, the local Home Guard, War Ship Weeks, local munitions production, those who fought and did not return, stories from those of the village who were PoWs, and much, much, more."

"The book was written over a six-month period, to be released on VE Day 2020, but unfortunately Covid19 made that impossible."

"Given many local people have contributed to this publication, it was important the book be released as soon as possible, and given it was specifically written as a VE Day publication it was important to release it on the following VE Day 2021."

Anne Fletcher with the book

Copies of the book priced at £5 can be obtained via order forms available at the three Appley Bridge churches (St Joseph's, the Methodist church at Skull House Lane and All Saints Parish Church) and at Pesto, on Dangerous Corner, Appley Bridge. The forms will be open until Saturday, May 22.

People are requested to pay cash when ordering, and leave their contact details, so pickup of copies can be arranged.

Cinco De Mayo celebrations!

RESIDENTS at Sutton Grange Care Home in Banks went loco celebrating Cinco de Mayo, which takes place on May 5 every year.

Cinco de Mayo is a national day which celebrates freedom and liberty in Mexico and residents marked the occasion by watching videos of parades and celebrations, had a themed quiz and enjoyed a brilliant Mexican party with Mariachi music and traditional snacks and refreshments.

Benn Mott, general manager at Sutton Grange, said: "We celebrate all cultures and religions and we try to mark as many cultural events as possible."

"Cinco de Mayo is a fantastic celebration and a great excuse for a party. We all had so much fun decorating the home with Mexican flags and pinatas and dancing to the Mariachi music."

Top comedians are lined up for festival of laughs

SOME of the biggest names in comedy have been revealed for Southport Comedy Festival 2021.

Reginald D Hunter, Jo Caulfield, Ed Byrne, Mark Thomas and Tez Ilyas will star at the event, in a huge marquee at Victoria Park in Southport this October.

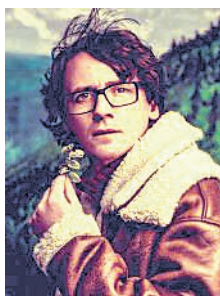

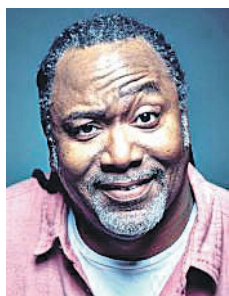

They join festival favourite Jason Byrne, who was announced last month, with more shows to be announced in the next few weeks.

Southport Comedy Festival 2021 is sponsored by Anthony James Estate Agents with a number of other local companies supporting the event.

Southport Comedy Festival director Brendan Riley said: "We are really excited about this year's event. We are building towards a proper festival."

"From the people, comedians and agents we have spoken to, there is a real appetite to get back out there and enjoy some top class live comedy again."

"Everyone is really pulling together to get tours

Plans revealed to build 22 homes in Scarisbrick

PLANS have been submitted to demolish existing buildings at Park House, Black Moss Lane, Scarisbrick and build 22 detached homes on the site.

The proposed development would contain a mix of four and five bedroom detached properties.

The houses would be two and 2.5 storeys.

There will be vehicle and pedestrian access via a new access from Black Moss Lane.

Each home will have its own garage and parking space.

The application states that the planning statement demonstrates "that the principle of development in terms of green belt impact, loss of employment floorspace and sustainable development does not conflict with the Development Plan or national planning policy."

It adds that the site will result in

A computerised image of what the development will look like a construction value figure of about £4.97m. It will create 57 on-site jobs and support 71 off-site jobs in construction related industries over the period of the build. The construction work will also provide training opportunities, in the form of apprenticeships.

According to the planning documents the proposals "would not have an adverse impact upon the living conditions of nearby residential properties or future residents."

MP joins campaign calling on government to fund research on brain tumours

Report by Henry James

WEST Lancashire MP Rosie Cooper has joined more than 112,000 people affected by brain tumours, who are demanding action from the government to fund research to help find a cure.

They have signed a petition created by the charity Brain Tumour Research, calling for increased investment in scientific research to bring parity of funding with other cancers such as breast and leukaemia.

A report circulated to MPs highlights the fact that brain tumours kill more children and adults under the age of 40 than any other cancer. Historically, just 1% of the national cancer spend has been allocated to this devastating disease.

The charity says that since 2002, when cancer spend records began, £680 million has been invested in breast cancer while just £96 million has been spent on researching brain tumours; a difference of £35 million a year over 17 years.

This disparity continues with brain tumour research spend continuing to receive £35 million a year less over the last three years.

In its Petition Report, Level Up and Stop the Devastation, the charity is calling on the Government to:

Introduce a new brain tumour research levelling up fund of £105 million

Increase the national investment into brain tumour research to £35 million a year

MP Cooper with a copy of the report

Demonstrate joined up thinking for investment across the brain tumour research pipeline

West Lancashire MP Rosie Cooper commented: "Further funding needs to be provided to medical research charities like Brain Tumour Research who are working to find cures for long term illnesses such as tumours.

"It is heart-breaking to hear the stories from those with brain tumours and their families and those who have lost loved ones.

"Research funding for brain tumours needs to be increased to at least match the funding levels provided to other long term illnesses."

Prime Minister Boris Johnson has already confirmed he will receive the report from Derek Thomas, MP for St Ives.

Speaking at Prime Minister's Questions (Wednesday, March 24) the PM said he looked forward to meeting with Mr Thomas, who is Chairman of the All Party Parliamentary Group on Brain Tumours once it was "safe to do so."

The PM told the House of Commons that the Government had already promised an investment of £40 million but campaigners point out that, three years into the five-year period over which the funds had been promised, just £9 million has been allocated.

Speaking as the report was launched, Mr Thomas said: "I am proud to continue to champion the cause for an increase in investment into brain tumour research.

"I never fail to be moved by the stories of families who have lost loved ones to this terrible disease and to patients themselves who show such bravery and commitment to finding improved outcomes for others and, ultimately, a cure.

"It is a great honour to be working with the charity Brain Tumour Research and I am looking forward to presenting this Petition Report, calling on the Government to match brain tumour research funding with other devastating cancers, to the Prime Minister.

"We know through Covid that properly funded research really can bring improvements in care, treatment and a cure. More than 100,000 people have signed this petition and are demanding action. It's time for a cure."

Edge Hill academic lands European role to help improve 'management education'

AN Edge Hill University academic has been elected to represent the UK on a key influential board to improve management education across Europe at a crucial time as the country navigates the aftermath of Brexit.

Professor Paresh Wankhade will serve on the European Academy of Management (EURAM) board and will utilise his position to forge new links with academics across Europe, contribute to debates about research management themes, and explore the possibility of opening up new sources of funding for

Professor Paresh Wankhade

UK research.

EURAM aims at advancing the academic discipline of management in Europe. As the UK's representative on the EURAM board, Paresh will help guide the organisation's agenda and build links with management experts and academics from more than 60 countries. His role is especially important as the UK is now out of the European Union, requiring new networks to be created.

Paresh said: "It is a great honour to have been re-elected to the EURAM board for another three years."

"My election comes at a critical time for UK academia with Brexit bringing huge changes to the access that British universities have to funding and research networks."

Heartless fraudsters target owners of lost dogs in new scam

Police say 'despicable individuals' claim to have missing pets, but want money to return them

Report by Henry James

POLICE are warning residents about a scam currently in operation where owners of lost pets are being sent fraudulent messages claiming their animal has been 'dognapped'.

Dog owners who have posted their contact details online when their pet has gone missing have been contacted by scammers on an unknown number.

They have said that the victim has a limited amount of time - usually a day - to transfer bitcoin or the scammers will kill their pet.

At 2.56pm on March 31, police were called by a woman in Longridge who had received threatening phone calls from a man claiming he had her lost lilac and tan French Bulldog Nelly.

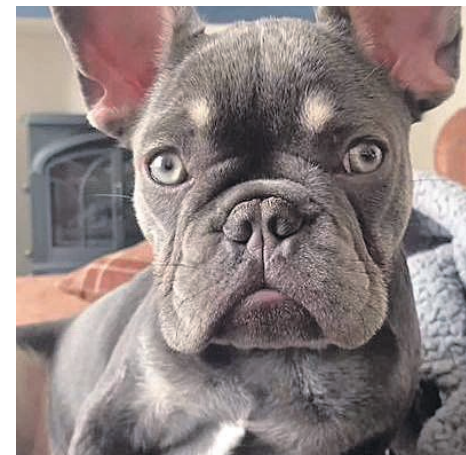

They said they would harm Nelly if she did not pay a ransom of £1,000 by 3pm that day.

In that case the man did not send any proof that he had Nelly.

The victim was then contacted the following day with a message stating: "I have your dog. It's fine just scared. Send £450 in bitcoin to this bitcoin wallet or I will sell it or whatever."

"When you pay send your address and I'll drop it off. I won't contact you again or reply."

"This is a throwaway phone. Police can't help. You have until end of Thursday."

Nelly

It is not clear whether the phone call and the message came from the same individual. Nelly is still missing.

Lancashire Constabulary say they take these offences, which are classed as blackmail, extremely seriously.

If you receive one of these fraudulent messages, the advice is to not respond and call the police.

Juliet Clark, of Lancashire Constabulary's Cyber Crime Unit, said: "These despicable individuals play on the emotions of their victims when they are at their most vulnerable."

"As upsetting and tempting as it is to pay the ransom, this is scam."

"If people are contacted after losing a pet with similar messages, contact police on 101."

Anybody with information about the whereabouts of Nelly is asked to call police on 101, quoting log 0934 of March 31, 2021.

Martin Mere news

WWT Martin Mere is back open and 'Good to Go'

All of us at WWT Martin Mere are really happy to be welcoming visitors back to our wetland centre. After all the gloom of the previous year, Spring is a great time for visitors to come back and enjoy all our wetland wildlife and experiences.

We have worked hard to keep people safe during their visit and have been accredited with the 'Good to Go' stamp of approval, which means we are operating within government guidelines and public health guidance for managing coronavirus risk. Our one way system around the grounds means that you can wander around safely enjoying the wildlife and we are carefully managing the numbers of people on site to keep you safe.

In our grounds, we have exciting news, as our white storks have all been nest building and we are soon expecting storklets to hatch. Similarly, our Japanese Cranes are also sitting on eggs. The first ducklings have arrived and we'll soon be seeing a lot more. Our otters are also delighted to be seeing people once again, after a dearth of human activity for them to watch.

Also in our grounds, we have had sightings of water voles from the reopened canoe safari. Taking a canoe out may also reward the lucky visitor with the sighting of a kingfisher.

On the reserve, our reedbed walk and viewing screens are open and our hides will reopen on May 17th. There's lots of activity on the reedbed walk which has come alive with the sounds of reed and sedge warblers, the very vocal cetti's warblers and several grasshopper warblers, which sound, you've guessed it, just like a grasshopper.

Another fantastic bird to look out for is the marsh harrier and we currently have a pair displaying to each other over the reedbed. Fingers crossed they will soon start to nest.

On the mere itself, the black-headed gull colony is in full swing and has become a very busy, noisy place. One of our favourite birds, the avocet, has also returned and is breeding on the reserve again.

With so much going on, we are looking forward to sharing it all with you once again but, to help keep everyone safe we're carefully managing the number of people who visit on any one day and are asking everyone to book in advance. This allows us to give you the best possible, safe experience.

To book online visit www.wwt.org.uk/martinmere.

ChampionMOTORS

It appears meatballs are stopping me from saving the planet!

MEATBALLS are preventing me from saving the planet.

I've come to this rather worrying conclusion after trawling the classified ads to see how little a second-hand electric car is going to set me back, and arriving at a decade-old Nissan Leaf whose three owners have put 93,500 zero emissions miles on its digital odometer. It looks good, with an MoT until November and a full history of it being doted on by Nissan main dealers. It's advertised for £3850, and I reckon if I twisted Greta's arm a little she'd let me leave the forecourt for £3500 – but I'd do so in the knowledge that meatballs, specifically the Köttbullar variety that IKEA do in their on-site cafés, will be tantalisingly out of reach.

Before you write to The Champion's letters page to accuse the bloke who does the motoring column of having a downer on electric cars, I'll put it on record that I'd happily have a Tesla Model X or a Porsche Taycan in my garage, and even own up to having a soft spot for Renault's faintly ridiculous Twizy. However I'm also firmly of the belief that you get more for your money if you buy secondhand, and that you're helping the environment by not using up the world's scant materials by knocking an entirely new car together.

Normally that sort of Man Maths is reserved for cars running on deceased dinosaurs, but if you extend that logic to electric cars you end up at the decade-old Leaf... ..with its decade-old batteries. Back in the day Nissan reckoned it was good for 110 miles, but after 93,500 miles and ten years of being plugged into the mains at the night, its outgoing owner reckons it'll now do just 45, and it could be less if you've a heavy right foot or it's a bit cold out. All of which means that if I set off from The Champion's office for Warrington's best-known purveyor of flat-pack furniture to stock up on Köttbullar and Billy bookcases, it'd conk out somewhere on the M57 on the return trip.

I've heard plenty of horror stories of the batteries costing five-figure sums to replace but while the cost of electric car tech is going down all the time, it'd still cost more than this Leaf's £3850 asking price to reinvigorate its range to even close to the 110 miles it'd cover when new, and I'm not sure that I'd be prepared to lavish that much on a decade-old Nissan. This, I suspect, it's why it's worth barely a tenth of its original asking price.

Sure, I know that for the vast majority of us, two-thirds of our journeys are under five miles, and that my own mileage has been reduced drastically by working from home – but on the few days that I do commute it's a 50-mile round-trip. Plenty of new electric cars will easily accomplish that, but until the cheapo secondhand ones can crack it too, I think it's unreasonable to ask those who can't afford it to fully embrace the nation's lunge towards zero emissions motoring.

My daily driver is a 22-year-old Toyota that cost a quarter what the Leaf does – and it always manages the meatball run. Enough said.

David Simister is the editor of Classic Car Weekly

Old electric cars can now be snapped up for a fraction of their original asking price

Subaru's new outback set to go on sale

SUBARU'S all-new outback (pictured above) goes on sale across the North West on May 27, with prices at £33,995.

For that you'll get the entry-level Limited model, but whichever model you pick you'll get safety-conscious tech like adaptive cruise control and a pre-collision braking system, and power comes from a 2.5-litre flat four engine, coupled to a permanent four-wheel-drive system. Go to the website: www.subaru.co.uk to find out more.
